

Allen Neighborhood Center & Grazing Fields

PRESENT

A Pop-Up Dinner, Presentation, and Discussion of
Non-GMO & Seed Saving

Inside the Allen Market Place on 1611 E. Kalamazoo St. in Lansing

January 26, 2018 | 5:00-7:30 pm

Free Admission

(You pay for your dinner)

---

Presentations:

GMOs - the on-going debate

with Paul B. Thompson

Paul is the W.K. Kellogg Professor of Agricultural, Food and Community Ethics at Michigan State University. In his presentation he will clarify terms, consider the pros and cons of each position and the merits of each in contributing to sustainable agriculture. Paul's books will also be available to purchase.

The Sanctity of Seed Saving

with Eric Kampe

Eric runs Ann Arbor Seed Company, a small farm that produces a diverse selection of locally grown vegetable seeds. He is passionate about encouraging everyone's active participation in seed saving and will share how participants can support this vital initiative.

Food Vendor: Building Blocks of MI...catering "feel good" food to greater Lansing.

---

Doors open at 4:45pm. Program begins at 5:45 pm with discussion following.

For further details, contact John McCarthy at 517.999.3923 or exchange@allenneighborhoodcenter.org

This program is underwritten by Grazing Fields, a local Michigan collaborative of farmers that has been producing and delivering the freshest, most flavorful eggs and pork for over twenty years to Michigan retailers and consumers.